Benefits of our NPQs

1. Our content is deeply rooted in an understanding of what is needed in schools and early years settings today

We involve schools and early years settings from the very start of the development of our NPQs: in designing our approach, in creating our curricula, materials and participant journeys, and in delivering the training as current, credible practitioners.

2. Excellent partner support

We are working in partnership with experts from Sheffield Hallam University's Institute of Education and Evidence Based Education, who bring evidence and rigour to all of our NPQ programmes. Our Early Years Leadership and Leading Literacy NPQ programmes are in partnership with Pen Green Centre and the National Literacy Trust respectively. Their input ensures that the content of these NPQs is evidence-informed and impactful.

Changing life stories

3. Strong focus on Deliberate Practice

Our curriculum, materials and delivery combine the best-evidenced science of learning approaches for developing knowledge, with the empowering routines and analytical rigour of Deliberate Practice helping to embed what is learned.

4. Emphasis on making change stick

All of our NPQs have a deeply imbued emphasis on putting theory into action, in order for practitioners and leaders to achieve sustained impact, whatever their level of influence.
